Music students at the National Music Camp, Interlochen, Mich., hoist Camp President Dr. Joseph E. Maddy to their shoulders after he told them the government had demanded of James C. Petrillo, president of American Federation of Musicians, an explanation of why he banned their music from the air after 12 years of broadcasting.

Americans Tell of Privations Suffered During Internment

First Exchange of Jap and U. S. Nationals Reported Complete

Lourence Marques, Portuguese East Africa, July 23.—(Delayed)—(AP)—The first diplomatic transfer of nationals between the United States and Japan since the start of the Pacific war was completed here today when more than 1,100 North and South American prisoners of war and Japanese civilians boarded the Swedish liner Gripsholm to take the places vacated by Japanese diplomats and their families brought from America.

The Americans arrived here on the liners Conte Verde and Asama Maru. They walked down the gangplanks of the two ships as the Japanese left the Gripsholm and the two groups moved along the quay in parallel lines to their new quarters.

The Tokyo radio said the Americans were scheduled to sail today (Saturday) from the East African port.

A line of railway cars had been drawn up on the quay, separating the Japanese and Americans as they marched to their new ships. Upon arriving at the Gripsholm, the Americans were permitted to disembark and tour the city.

The exchange was supervised by the Portuguese foreign office.

The North and South Americans fought with them from Japan and Japanese occupied territories of their existence in the Orient under Japanese supervision. Some of these accounts told of hunger, cold and threats.

(Four Associated Press correspondents arrived with the group, following are portions of a composite story on conditions in Japan and Japanese-occupied territory written by the correspondents. Some parts of the story are omitted to conform with official requests from Washington that nothing be done which could interfere in the slightest with the welfare or repatriation of Americans ill in Jap-occupied territory. The correspondents are Max Hill, chief of the former Associated Press bureau in Tokyo; Relman Lorin, who was in Indo-China; Joseph Dynan, who was in Tokyo; and Vaughn Meisling, who was in Hongkong at its capitulation.)

Composite Story

Some of the returning American nationals reported that some prisoners were threatened with the gallotine by Japanese authorities seeking to obtain admissions of guilt from men charged with espionage.

There were no known cases in Japan of physical abuse of women or children among the prisoners. At some men were told their wives and children would be made suffer if they did not confess espionage charges.

(These reports are those of individuals and have not yet been brought to the official attention of the United States government.)

There was a general food shortage in Hongkong and Americans and Canadians held there suffered from beri-beri, pellagra and other ailments caused by diet deficiencies. Some lost as much as 60 pounds in weight and the average was 20 pounds.

In the northern areas of the Japanese empire, internees suffered from cold during the winter. Those held in Korea and Manchuria endured unheated cells and used with temperatures below zero.

The War Today!

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst
(Telegraph Special Service)

The battle for the Caucasus now has reached the point at which Soviet Marshal Timoshenko presumably had figured on making a back-to-the-wall stand south of the broad reaches of the lower Don which forms a partial barrier to this land of oil.

Up to this juncture Timoshenko has been retiring along a wide front before a fierce million-man pressure. His withdrawal has been orderly and he has conducted a rear-guard action which has exacted a costly toll from the enemy in men and material. We may expect the Red commander to continue his studied retirement eastward into the great bend of the Don river towards Stalingrad, but the time would appear to have arrived when he must hold in the south.

In short, we have reached a crisis in this bloody engagement which is bound to have a vital and perhaps decisive influence on the outcome of the war. Now is the time when we begin to ask in earnest whether the Russians can hold.

The future must answer that question, but we can say that while the position is grave it isn't desperate, which is to say there is no occasion for despair. Actually, observers in Moscow assume that the Bolsheviks have a good-sized and thoroughly trained army massed south and southeast of the Don. London experts hold similar views.

That is a logical assumption, although the Muscovites naturally haven't been broadcasting the strength of their forces. The whole world long has known that Hitler intended to strike for the Caucasus and Middle East in an effort to secure the oil and other supplies which he needs so badly. It therefore would be passing strange if a man as shrewd as Joseph Stalin had left the gateway to the Caucasus unguarded.

Unfortunately, however, we oversimplify the matter if we believe that holding the line of the lower Don, or even the whole gateway to the Caucasus, ends the Hitlerian threat. As explained before in this column, the Nazi chief has two objectives in his great offensive. One is to break into the Caucasus, and the other is to cut the Soviet proper off from its lifeline to the Caucasus and the Persian Gulf.

Now it is possible for Hitler to sever the lifeline even if he can't

Veto of Measure to Make Rubber From Grain Is Probable

House Ignores Pleas of War Department and Passes Bill

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—A presidential veto apparently was ready today for legislation under which the government would in some measure abandon petroleum as a base for synthetic rubber and use more farm products.

The house yesterday passed a senate-approved bill to create an independent agency with the authority and the money to contract with manufacturers for an increased supply of the vital product for both war and essential civilian uses.

This proposed revision of the rubber production program has been opposed by the administration. Under current policy petroleum is designated as the base for most of the synthetic produced under direction of the War Production Board and the Rubber Reserve Corporation.

Despite an eleven-hour plea of Undersecretary of War Patterson that a new agency would create confusion in the program and divert critical materials from tanks, airplanes and ships, the house approved the bill.

Alien Had Bomber Maps and Pictures

New York, July 25.—(AP)—Aerial photographs and "bomber" maps showing vital spots throughout New York and New Jersey were found in the possession of one of 11 enemy aliens seized in a roundup yesterday, P. E. Foxworth, assistant director of the FBI, reported today.

There were 100 such photographs and maps, specifically designed as guides to enemy bombers, Foxworth declared. He added that all the photographs were developed in Germany, leaving no doubt that the Nazi government had copies.

The photographs were described as excellent aerial views, showing such important points as the George Washington bridge, the banks of the Hudson river, airplane factories, war plants, reservoirs and other logical bomber targets.

Foxworth said the alien also had between 50 and 75 maps of South and Central America, particularly of Peru and Chile.

Farmer Enlists in Salvage Drive in Big Way in Shawano County, Wis.

Chicago, July 25.—(AP)—A Shawano county, Wis., farmer turned scrap salvage man today, was peeling junked automobiles at a rate of one every half hour from a mountain of them submerged in a small lake.

The story of the salvage expedition was told by Eugene L. Dunn, head of the WFB auto graveyard division in Chicago.

Albert Radtke, an automobile dealer, had been selling about 200 new cars a year for the last 15 years. He stripped the trade-in cars and each winter towed them on the ice to the center of a 400-foot nameless lake near Zachow, Wis., 26 miles northwest of Green Bay.

When the thaws came the cars sank to the bottom of the lake, Radtke estimated he had disposed

President Seen as Having Powers to Prevent Inflation

No Message Expected So Congress Prepares Informal Letup

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—As house members prepared today to start indefinite, informal vacations, President Roosevelt was reported to have reached the conclusion that he could take steps to curb inflation without additional legislation.

Members who declined to be quoted by name said they had received word that there was little likelihood Roosevelt would send a message to congress asking for additional authority to control rising costs of living.

Therefore, they said, they could return to their homes or take a vacation for a few weeks since the calendars were cleared of all business and no important new proposals were in sight.

It was assumed that the president had found, after a careful survey, that he had adequate authority under his powers as commander-in-chief in time of war and under authority of the price control and war powers acts to deal with any such situation as it might develop.

Duck Tail

New York, July 25.—(AP)—You've heard of the Bronx cocktail, no doubt, but have you ever heard of the Bronx duck tail?

It's the latest, and quickest, if you'll pardon the pun, of all the various Bronx ex-tant.

It isn't a drink, it isn't an animal—it's a masculine (?) hairdo.

The process is simple—and according to many mothers there, so are the lads who are going in for it.

You sit down in the barber chair, Willie the modern barber picks up comb and scissors. Eventually you emerge with a pompadour in front and a straight part down the back of your head after the fashion of a woman's updo. Then the side hairs are swept in towards the part and finger-curved over.

It resembles the tail feathers of a duck.

Predicts Senate Will Strike Out Source Collection

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—Senator Taft (R-O) forecast today that the senate finance committee would strike from the house-approved tax bill a proposal to collect individual income taxes by installment deductions from the pay envelopes of the nation's workers.

The senator, who has opposed this section of the new $6,271,000,000 tax bill, said that while he had made no canvass of committee sentiment, he believed a majority of members was inclined to vote against the proposal because of the steep increase it would bring in the collection of taxes from individuals in 1943.

29 German, Italian Ships Confiscated

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—The government has confiscated 29 German and Italian merchant ships and requisitioned the Argentine Steamship Victoria in actions to supplement the United States Merchant Marine.

The axis ships include the Odenwald, a German vessel captured early in 1941 while sailing in the Caribbean under false colors, and 28 merchantmen damaged by their crews while in American ports in March, 1941. The Maritime Commission requested the possession and use of the 29 some time ago but until yesterday they had not passed to this government.

Son Drowns When Dad Catches Fish

Decatur, Ill., July 25.—(AP)—The death of his five year old son was the tragic penalty George M. Pfeifer paid for pulling a big fish from the Sangamon river.

Pfeifer's son, Dean, became extremely excited when his dad landed a big fish, and slipped and fell backward off a concrete abutment into the river.

Japanese Efforts to Land Supplies at New Post Fail

Steady Allied Bombing Breaks Up Would-be Landing Force

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Australia, July 25.—(AP)—Steady allied dive-bombers has broken off the landing of Japanese supplies in the newly-occupied Buna-Gona area of New Guinea and several fully loaded enemy vessels have withdrawn northward under naval escort, a communique announced today.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said 45,000 pounds of explosives and incendiaries were dropped yesterday on troops, invasion barges, stores and installations in that region low on northeast coast of the Papuan peninsula.

Large fires were started and an anti-aircraft battery was silenced, the communique reported.

"A number of the enemy's cargo vessels have been unable to unload, being forced to withdraw to the north under cover of naval forces," it said.

Publisher Served With Warrant in Hospital Bed

New York, July 25.—(AP)—Charged in a warrant with conspiring to undermine the morale of America's armed forces, William Griffin, editor-publisher of the New York Enquirer, has been placed under technical arrest at St. Clare's hospital.

The warrant was served yesterday when federal authorities, who had searched for him since Thursday, learned Griffin had been re-admitted to St. Clare's where he recently had been a patient, for treatment for a heart ailment.

The search began when U. S. Commissioner Garrett W. Cotter issued bench warrants for Griffin, Col. Eugene Nelson Sanctuary, Army Reserve officer, and James Smythe, executive of the Protestant War Veterans Association. Twenty-five others have been indicted in other cities.

In a statement issued at the hospital, Griffin charged that Special Assistant Attorney General William Power Maloney "clearly has been out to 'get me', to wound me to death. x x x Behind it all is a determined effort to 'get me' in some way and to suppress the New York Enquirer."

Strategic Line of Russians' Defense Dented by Invader

United States Bombers Participating in Red Army's Air Force

BY CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH
Associated Press War Editor

After four weeks of their major offensive action for 1942, the Germans have gained a foothold on the southern, or deep Caucasus, side of the lower Don river—a strategic line on which Russian forces have taken a stand to shield their southern contact with the allied world.

United States bombers had become a powerful bulwark of the Red air force in the battle of the Caucasus.

An American source at Moscow said that Douglas Bostons, twin-engined medium bombers from America, were participating in the Red air force's hammering of German armored columns on the Don steppes.

Presumably the planes were flown by Russians although the Moscow dispatch did not specifically say so. There have been previous reports of U. S. planes being flown to the Don front, and going directly into action. The U. S. Army has a strong air force in the Middle East, and presumably this command sent the planes.

Official sources at Cairo said that in seven daylight operations of the past week the American fliers had caused heavy damage to port installations and shipping at Tobruk and Bengasi, in Libya, and at Suda Bay, Crete, an axis troop concentration point in the Mediterranean.

Cut Axis Air Power

At the Egyptian end of the Middle East lifeline, the RAF had cut drastically deeper into axis air power, having shot up more than 30 planes in yesterday's strafing and air combat. The El Alamein land front was reported static.

The Italian high command said that its submarines had sunk a troop-laden transport and a 5,000-ton merchantman in the eastern Mediterranean while axis troops on the El Alamein line repulsed tank attacks yesterday and axis airmen shot down 18 planes, four of them torpedo planes which attacked an axis convoy.

The British said that the axis convoy was attacked in the Ionian sea and that when the torpedo planes left, the "well-escorted enemy merchant ship . . . was stationary and down at the bows."

The British successes against axis air power were divided as follows: Four planes downed and others damaged at Malta and three shot down in combat, two wrecked in taking off and more than 20 damaged or destroyed around in two attacks yesterday on the El Daba landing grounds, an axis forward base in Egypt.

Says News of Strikes Infuriates Fighters

Springfield, Ill., July 25.—(AP)—Lt. Joseph P. Gaffigan, 23-year-old naval officer who fought at Pearl Harbor, says that Navy men in Hawaii are "infuriated" when they hear of industrial strikes and complaints about tire and gasoline rationing.

"We are infuriated when we read newspaper accounts of strikes," Gaffigan said while visiting home on leave. "We think they are treasonable actions."

"Those of us who went through Pearl Harbor and saw what we saw cannot be pleasant about these things. While people here are complaining about tires and gas, they seem to forget what the front lines are undergoing."

Removal of Four Portraits From Old House Ends Bizarre Will Case

New York, July 25.—(AP)—A bizarre will case ended Friday when four well dusted family portraits were carried out of a red brick house on East 3rd street in Lower Manhattan.

The portraits, the property of the Hart sisters of Bloomington, Ill., portrayed the former owners of the home, Richard and Esther Woods, and their two children, William and Harvey Woods.

Upon her death in 1898, Mrs. Woods bequeathed to her two nieces, Esther and Sarah Hart, a quarter of a million dollars—provided they lived in her house during their entire lives and kept the family portraits dusted.

Thereupon 50-odd heirs battled through court after court for a share of the estate, the Hart girls winning the final decision in 1901. They retired to the quiet of the old house, only to move to Bloomington as the E. 3rd street environs became more crowded.

For years they tried unsuccessfully to break two clauses in the will, bequeathing them $250,000 provided they did not let or sublet the property, and provided the portraits remained in the house in good condition.

CASH IS SAVED BY REMODELING

Old House Is Often Sturdier Than New One

In a period of real estate activity, it is a common supposition that the old house may be sold and a new one built rather than increasing the amount invested in the older house. But it often happens that the old house is hard to sell, and many of the older homes are actually of more value than the new ones. They are built better and the sites or locations are worth more than when the house was built.

Often the principal objection is that they are somewhat antiquated, that they lack sufficient electric outlets or built-in features, that they have only one bath and room for one car in the garage.

Perhaps they are of frame exterior that needs frequent painting. In such a case there is justification as well as economy in making additions to provide adequate accommodations or remodeling to improve either the exterior design or interior planning.

MODERNIZING MAGIC -- BEFORE AND AFTER

with new conveniences and equipment.

Price of Site

When one considers the price of a new site, together with additional financing, the charges incident thereto and many of the troubles of building, there is considerable advantage in making over the old home to bring it up to present day requirements and indeed to make it really more salable than in its present condition.

That a house appears dilapidated does not mean it is beyond salvaging. Many times by putting an overcoating or a cement plaster finish on the outside over the old weatherboarding or shingles a new appearing house may be evolved.

Of course the framework of the house must be sound and the interior in fair condition, and if so the structure offers opportunity to rehabilitate and to reap a high rate of return on the investment.

Reduce Paint Costs

This new overcoating is not necessarily confined to frame houses. It may be easily applied to brick with just as satisfactory results and savings.

Such treatment reduces the painting costs to a minimum, eliminates the cost of repairs so frequent with a wood house, and really adds to the warmth of the house because of the extra insulation and improves the exterior finish.

The cost of painting the average small frame house with two coats of good oil paint will usually amount to from $125 to $300 and this should be done at least once every three years if the house is to be preserved.

With the cement coated house, however, the amount of surface to be painted is very much less than the cost of painting and would not average more than $50.

It has been estimated that a cement overcoating on a house with metal lath and plaster, will reduce the conductivity of the exterior wall, with a corresponding decrease in the fuel bill for the owner.

Guards at Ammunition Plants Will Be Formed Into Civil Auxiliaries

Chicago, July 25.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. George Gunert, commanding the Sixth Service Command, announced today that guard forces in all ammunition plants and other Army installations were being organized into a civilian auxiliary. Gunert said the auxiliary, which would be organized, drilled and instructed as military units subject to appropriate applicable articles of war, would be assigned to prevent acts of sabotage or attacks by enemy agents on war production facilities.

The units first will be organized in plants which are owned and operated by the war department, Gen. Gunert said, and will be extended to civilian plants with government contracts as quickly as feasible.

FROM THIS NEGLECTED STRUCTURE

It is the vogue today to transform an old house into a livable modern dwelling. It is not only an excellent procedure but a most interesting experience. Here is an example of such a house. The smaller illustration presents the house as it appeared after modernization—quite a changed home. Notice that new concrete foundations have been built, a new tile roof added and the wood siding covered with a permanent cement plaster. New window sashes have replaced the old ones with muntins dividing the sash into smaller panes of glass. Such a division of the window sash gives scale to the rest of the house, making it appear larger and goes a long way in giving this transformation the modern and quite satisfactory appearance that came about through various changes.

The auxiliary forces will be hired, clothed and fed without army assistance. In active duty, they will function as civilian auxiliaries to the military police.

Remodeled Attic Provides Room For War Industry Workers

A remodeled and modernized attic offers one of the best solutions to the problem of providing quickly additional housing accommodations for war workers in vital war production areas.

Unfinished or unused attics can easily be transformed into complete, livable rooms. Insulating may be used for an economical neat and quick remodeling job on the attic. Requiring no painting, papering, or finishing, insulating board keeps the room warm in the winter and cool in the summer.

Scrubbing or scraping, followed by a couple of coats of shellac, will make the floor look like new.

When finished the family has an additional room, adequate and comfortable, which will help to ease the critical housing shortages in over-crowded areas.

It takes time to plan and build new houses. Workers in the war production industries must be provided with living accommodations. They must be given decent places in which to live, immediately. They cannot wait the two or three months necessary to build new homes.

In almost every large community, in which for the most part war production plants are concentrated, there are a number of large older houses. Many of these properties are being put to only partial use. They lend themselves perfectly to conversion into one and two-room apartments. Such conversion work will easily and quickly solve the housing problem for a number of war workers and their families.

OVERHEAD LIGHT IN HALL ADVISED

Convenience Outlets for Lamps Are Desirable

It is best to have an overhead light in the hall controlled by proper switches. A hall longer than 10 feet should have control three-way switches at each end of the hall.

In addition, convenience outlets for lamps, pictures and nightlights are desirable.

Also the outside entrance lights, with a house number thereon, should be switched on and off from the entrance hall near the front door.

Stairways require plenty of light and each landing should be well-illuminated. These lights should be wired so they can be controlled from all floors and they may be, if desired, connected to a master control system from a central point.

Don't forget to install a convenience outlet for the electric vacuum cleaner.

It is suggested, when you modernize and rewire your home, that you consider the following list of possible electrical conveniences for the staircase: Electric outlets, landing lights, three-way switches, night-light and master control systems.

It can't happen to you—that is, if you're protected with liability insurance. Save yourself worry and expense by being insured against all accidents. It's a step toward safety!

STRUCTURAL GLASS

One of the most satisfactory and smart ways of finishing the walls of your bathroom is to use colored structural glass. The glass does not fade, it is impervious to moisture, it may be easily cleaned by wiping with a damp cloth, and furnishes a beautifully polished reflective surface. The glass comes in a variety of colors so that you may select almost any color combination or scheme for your room and have each bathroom with different design and appearance.

Daniel Beard Home Just Newly Painted

Lucas paints are being put on more homes in Dixon every week with the latest addition to the long list of satisfied home owners being Daniel C. Beard of 215 Logan avenue.

Mr. Beard came in some time ago and made his purchase and we understand that the home is now completely painted. The color scheme being white with a green trim. We would also like to add here that we think they did a mighty fine and attractive job. If any of you other people who have been considering painting your home, we are sure that if you would drive by the Beard home and just see how nice it looks and how striking the appearance is, you wouldn't wait another moment longer. Another feature about Lucas paints... they hold the gloss finish and will preserve your home for a long time to come.

5 FACTS

About Building and Remodeling

The Answer to a Problem That's Bothering Home-Owners and Business Men

1. YOU CAN REMODEL NOW! Washington authorities agree that remodeling which does not require critical materials is actually an aid to the nation's war program—and should not be postponed.

2. AMERICA NEEDS MORE ROOM! The necessary restrictions in new building makes it essential to renovate, repair and expand many old structures to provide additional living and workspace badly needed in many communities.

3. HELP CONSERVE OUR WAR RESOURCES by improving present homes and buildings. This is no time for waste—but government experts estimate that uninsulated homes now consume a billion dollars more fuel than necessary, besides placing a tremendous burden on transportation systems and using manpower needed for armament production.

4. SAVE VITAL ELECTRIC POWER for war industry. Many homes, plants, offices and stores can save electricity and have better lighting if their interior walls and ceilings are refinished with a new low-cost paint that reflects more light.

5. WE HAVE MORE THAN 100 NON-MILITARY MATERIALS IN STOCK that you can use immediately and with clear conscience... plus a lot of practical new methods to save time and money on repairing and remodeling. Don't put off jobs that will improve the value of your property to yourself and to your country. Phone 57 or 72 for further details today.

Remodel Britt Home On Harrison Avenue

Mr. Bert Britt, local painting contractor, who lives at 84 Harrison avenue, has completely remodeled his home, making over the upstairs into a five-room apartment with bath. The doorways are arched, the kitchen and bath have built-in cabinets which is an important factor that every woman will enjoy and all in all, it will make someone a very nice living quarters.

Now, with increased demands on home-owners to help others find apartments and homes, it is a fine idea to make over the upstairs of your home for an apartment. Even if you have a spare room somewhere in the house, with a little remodeling, you could realize some extra revenue by renting.

By reading the other copy in the Knot-Hole News today, the question is cleared up as to the building and remodeling that can be done. Remodeling such as the Britt's have done is considered helpful to defense and to conserve our building materials. Phone 57 or 72 today or the first thing Monday morning, we have many suggestions and plans that would probably fit right into your scheme of remodeling.

Help yourself and Uncle Sam by insulating your home now. By doing this you will help yourself by having increased fire safety, a home cooler in summer and warmer in the winter and you will reduce your fuel bill as much as 44% (by government test). Also by insulating your home, you will help your Uncle Sam by conserving coal for vital defense industries and relieve some of the strain on the transportation facilities hauling fuel.

And the other day along Foist street we heard that a certain Scotchman—"the drinks were on him"... and just think, we could have commented: "A beer truck must have ran over him, then."

Our Loans Remain Our Loans!

By that, we mean until they are paid off. We do not make a home loan and then sell it to some investor, or to some other institution. You can borrow here with complete confidence that you will be dealing with the same friendly officers during the life of your loan, and that its terms will not be changed to suit some new owner. We have ample funds to help you buy, build, remodel or refinance NOW. Your application is invited.

HAVE SUN BONNET TEA, MAKE WILLOW WHISTLES, STAGE BALL AT SCOUT CAMP JOHN RALSTON

Another week of happy adventure at Girl Scout Camp John Ralston is drawing to a close for the horde of young girls enrolled for the season's fourth period. And a glance at the program reveals there has been no lack of interesting and instructive projects for the group, including 33 Brownies and Pioneers from Dixon, Sterling, and Streator.

In addition to wading, hiking, and cooking out of doors, the Brownies (7 to 10-year-olds, who will later "fly up" to the rank of Scouts), have finger-painted sun bonnets for a sun bonnet tea; made squawkers of willow; dramatized nursery rhymes; helped feed the chickens and cows and assisted in the care of seven baby kittens at the George Floto farm; and enjoyed a daily story hour, when Miss Edna Bingham, unit leader, has reviewed fairy tales and stories of operas.

Last evening, seven of the Brownies were hostesses at a masquerade ball. On Tuesday evening, they hiked to "The Mount," where lunch was served from colorful boxes that were designed by Mrs. Karl Zastrow, camp nurse.

Five executives from the Rockford Girl Scout council visited the camp on Wednesday. The visitors included Mrs. Fred Kamppeier, regional staff member and camp visitor; Mrs. Vivian Carter Johnson, executive secretary; Mrs. Leo Culhane, commissioner; Mrs. John Christianson, and Mrs. Henry Dales, camp committee members.

A bat has been a special pet of this week's Pioneer unit, composed entirely of young girls from Streator. Their program has ranged from a treasure hunt to a hike to the Rock river, lashing a wash stand, swimming on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday mornings at Crawford's pool, identifying leaves and shrubs, and making wild gooseberry jam.

Dixon Brownies at the camp include: Barbara Elaine Heckman, Karen Foster, Anne Lesage, Nancy Lou Schertner, Janet Schrader, Sue Anderson, Mary Dixon, Frances Lahey, Joan Eby, Jacqueline Fry, Sarah McNichols, Anne Arnold, Sylvia Schuler, Mary Joan Hill, June Goltzen, Susan James, Elsie Bunnell, Ann Chapman, Martha Ann McNichols, Rosemary Malay, Clara Gibson, Frances Ogan, and Armilla Green. Janice Wagner, Jeanne Ward, and Betty Winn of Sterling are also in the unit.

Streator girls in the Pioneer unit number Mary Barrett, Virginia Swartz, Marjorie McNamara, Mary Gochanour, Jenny Metcalf, Esther Engle, and Laura Engle.

TO BECOME ATTORNEY

Robert Elwood Leake, son of the Fred W. Leake of Amboy, has been notified that he passed the written examination for admission to the Illinois bar. He will appear before the Character and Fitness committee of the Second Appellate district at the next meeting of the Supreme Court of Illinois, and will later take the oath of an attorney and counselor at law, before receiving a license to practice. Following his graduation from Amboy high school, he attended the University of Illinois, and was graduated from law school at Urbana.

TWO DOWNTOWN ROOMS ARE OFFERED TO RED CROSS FOR WARTIME SEWING CENTERS

With the offer of two downtown basement rooms for their use as headquarters, members of the local chapter of the American Red Cross will be ready to open a new avenue of wartime service to women eager to give time, energy, and patriotic devotion to the nation's war effort, as soon as a secretary to take charge of production is named. M. E. Rice, proprietor of the Hotel Nachusa, has assigned a large basement room at the historic hostelry as sewing headquarters, and in another basement room in the City National bank building, a center for making surgical dressings will be established.

There are windows on three sides of the hotel room, which has been placed in spick-and-span order for the workers. Work tables have been moved into place, and additional equipment will be selected by Mrs. Rae Arnold. Mrs. Wilbur Hart is to have charge of the sewing unit, and Mrs. R. E. Worsley is to serve as knitting instructor.

Preparatory for giving instruction in the surgical dressing unit, Mrs. Forrest Trautwein and Mrs. Donald Marks expect to go to Moline, Aug. 4-5, to attend an instructors' institute, to be conducted by the American Red Cross. Mrs. T. J. Miller heads the local Red Cross project.

TO LAKE GENEVA

The Rev. and Mrs. Herbert J. Doran will be on vacation next month from the Presbyterian manse. Mr. Doran will spend a week at summer school at the Presbyterian Theological Seminary in Chicago, before accompanying Mrs. Doran and their children, John Herbert and Reba Ann, to Lake Geneva for three weeks.

Mrs. Wilhelm Entertains for Mrs. Salzman

Mrs. Richard Wilhelm of Tempe, Ariz., was a bridge hostess of last evening, entertaining former Dixon school friends, at the home of her parents, the H. C. Bartholomews of 733 East Third street, in courtesy to Mrs. Louis Salzman, who will be moving from the city soon. Mrs. Salzman expects to leave Sept. 1 for Chadwick, where Louis has been transferred by the Standard Oil company.

A dessert course preceded the card games, with Miss Betty George and Mrs. Charles Marshall receiving score favors. Other holding tallies were Mrs. Salzman, Mrs. Lyle Snader, Mrs. Lyle Melvin, Mrs. Robert Bovey, Mrs. Gunnar Nilsson, Mrs. Herbert Cooper, Mrs. Allen Boyd, Mrs. Raymond Toot, Miss Anna Jean Crabtree, and Miss Gail George.

AT BABSON FARM

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Densmore of Chicago are spending the week end with Mr. and Mrs. B. Babson at the Babsons' summer home on their Arabian horse farm, near Grand Detour. Mr. Densmore, secretary-treasurer of the Horse and Mule Breeder's association of America and a nationally-known authority on horses of all breeds, is making his annual inspection of the thoroughbreds at the Babson stables.

WE, THE WOMEN

Train Yourself Now for the Job You'd Need If Army Calls Hubby

By RUTH MILLITT

The day after Secretary of War Stimson reminded Americans that we have never had a great war in which we did not find it necessary to call up young married men and youths of 18 to 20, Mrs. Jones, whose husband is 28 years old and not employed in an essential occupation, went down to an employment agency for some advice.

She had never held a steady job, and she decided it was high time she got busy getting some kind of training so she could work if her husband should be called into the army within the next year.

There Are Many Immediate Benefits

Even if he should receive a commission—which she very much doubts—she knows she would want a job to keep from feeling useless. But more than likely she will need to help with her own support.

She has no children and should Uncle Sam start providing for Mr. Jones' car, Mrs. Jones wouldn't have much to do.

After she had given the woman at the employment agency an idea as to her education, her aptitudes, and her preferences as to types of work, the woman advised her to take a business course.

She has begun—and she already feels less depressed about the future.

First of all, because she is doing something constructive, instead of sitting around worrying. Secondly, because she knows that in a short time she will be well enough trained so that she can support herself. And thirdly, because her husband seems so relieved to find that he isn't married to a helpless, little thing but to a girl who can size up a situation and get busy doing something to improve it.

Planning Today Pays Tomorrow

There are thousands of young wives in the same boat with Mrs. Jones. Women who don't know but that their men will soon be needed in the army. The sooner they assume that the army will take their men eventually and start planning their futures accordingly—the less of a shock it will be if a draft board some day decides that Uncle Sam can't get along without their husbands.

WADSWORTH-HICKS MATCH TO DECIDE CHAMPIONSHIP IN PLUM HOLLOW HANDICAP TOURNEY

Play has advanced to the finals in the July handicap tournament for linkswomen of the Plum Hollow Golf and Country club, with Mrs. Elwin Wadsworth scheduled to meet Mrs. Wallace Hicks, Jr., next week to determine the championship. Mrs. E. B. Ryan was even with Mrs. Wadsworth at the 18th hole of their semi-final match.

and they went an extra nine to settle the bout. Mrs. Hicks defeated Mrs. George Scott, giving her the right to meet Mrs. Wadsworth in the finals.

Mrs. Joseph Villiger, Jr., is to meet the winner of a match between Mrs. James Reuter and Mrs. Vernon Swan, (yet to be played) to decide the championship in B-flight of the tourney.

Two-ball foursomes are scheduled tentatively for Tuesday, when the golfers meet for their weekly ladies' day play on Tuesday, and there is to be a scramble luncheon.

Crusaders Plan Sunday Picnic

The annual picnic of Dixon chapter, Chiropractic Crusaders, has been announced for Sunday at Lowell park. A varied program has been arranged, including games for the children, races for the young people, and races and games for adults, with a flag race for river craft as a special feature.

Ice cream and refreshments will be provided by Dr. S. Chandler Bend. Mrs. Harry Millhouse is chapter chairman for the year.

Approximately 300 guests attended last year's gathering.

WEEK END GUESTS

Mr. and Mrs. George Ortman of Canton, Ill. and Mr. and Mrs. W. Ellis of Chicago will visit in Dixon during the week end, as guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Ortman, 1020 Third street. The George Ortman's are Mr. Ortman's parents, and Mr. Ellis is Mrs. R. W. Ortman's brother.

Young Couple's Club in Outdoor Supper and Swim

Getting out under the moon is a popular occupation these pleasant July evenings. And 24 members of the Young Married Couple's club of the First Presbyterian church were heading for the outdoor grill at the Joseph Crawford's country home last evening, to prepare a supper of wieners and corn on the cob. Following a dip in the pool, the group returned to Dixon for a dessert course at the ice cream social being sponsored by the church at Miss Grace Crawford's home.

During a brief business meeting, the club members elected new officers and discussed plans for a stunt show to be staged in October, for the benefit of the Presbyterian wartime service fund. Every organization in the church will be invited to participate.

Officers named last evening included: President, Mrs. James Milley; vice president, Mrs. Carl Santee; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. William Barthelmes.

Hollywood Takes Action to Save Vital Raw Film

Hollywood, July 25 — (Wide World) — Movie studios consume approximately two billion linear feet of raw film a year, which they estimate contains enough cotton and nitric acid to produce 25,000 five-hundred pound demolition bombs or ten million pounds of other explosives.

That's why they're bearing down on producers and directors to conserve every foot of film possible. And the pressure appears to be getting results.

Some directors report they have saved up to 50 per cent on a single picture.

They not only are insisting that actors learn their dialogue better before they step before the cameras, and thus reduce the number of retakes, but they're figuring every other way to cut the film bill.

One proposal under consideration is that all credits be eliminated from films—a procedure some estimate would save ten million feet a year.

Actors, of course, would have most to lose through such a deletion since theirs is the identity with which audiences are most concerned. However, some have indicated a willingness to accept the recommendation if all other credits are similarly cut.

Why a dozen or two people, including clothes designers, dialogue directors and other studio super-numeraries should have screen credit, they argue, has always been a mystery to them, anyway.

A Thought For Today

The way of transgressors is hard,—
Proverbs 13:15.

In let loose speaks punishment at hand.—Cowper.

Needs Authority

When Elmer Davis went to Washington to become czar over war publicity, few newsmen doubted that he would come into conflict with the War and Navy Departments—or, specifically, with the generals and the admirals.

The controversy came more promptly than most had expected. Mr. Davis had not even had time to accomplish administrative revisions before the trial of eight Nazi saboteurs began before a special military commission appointed by the President and headed by Maj.-Gen. Frank R. McCoy.

Original detailed publicity on the capture of these submarine-borne enemies was broadcast, foolishly we believe, by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

Before the trial commenced Mr. Davis promised newsmen he would make available daily a censored report on proceedings, including as many facts as would not be of aid to the enemy.

But General McCoy, presumably with the approval of his fellow officers on the commission, arbitrarily, curtly—in fact, very uncivilly—snubbed Mr. Davis and ignored Attorney General Biddle. Thus the issue was joined.

One condition under which Mr. Davis took the job was that Army and Navy publicity should fall within his jurisdiction. The presidential order made that clear.

Now we must wait and see whether President Roosevelt is going to support Mr. Davis, and kick the high horses out from under the brass hats, or whether the military is superior to the civil authority.

This is no mere technicality. One of the greatest reasons Elmer Davis or somebody like him was needed in Washington was because the Army and the Navy were doing two of the worst public relations jobs on record—inferior to that of civilian war agencies.

We hope that Mr. Roosevelt will stand firmly back of Mr. Davis, give him the authority he was promised, hold him fully responsible for using it wisely, and send him back to civilian life if he fails.

Somebody who doesn't know where West Point and Annapolis are is needed to bring order into the present public relations chaos. There is reason to believe that Mr. Davis may possess the capacity.

Is he going to have the authority, or to be strangled in gold braid?

Yankee Ingenuity

From cities as far removed from each other, and from New England, as Brooklyn, N. Y., and Memphis, Tenn., come clever Yankee strategists to beat the gasoline shortage legally.

In Brooklyn a motorist is using illuminating gas. In Memphis a chemical manufacturer is powering a truck with carbon monoxide gas generated from charcoal.

Both work. But, also, they suggest the futility of trying to save irreplaceable rubber by rationing gasoline. Cars powered by a substitute wear out tires just as fast as cars using gasoline.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc., reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited)

Washington, July 24.—It was not fully clear from the text, but State Secretary Hull's fireside chat was designed to warm the American people up to the increasing seriousness of the war situation.

Apprehensions of officials here at the turn of the battle in Russia were somewhat lost in Hull's restrained choice of statesman-like language. But you will notice the implication of his whole address was that there can be no compromise, no matter what happens in Russia, that we are fighting irreconcilably for the freedom of our lives, and nation and world.

Of secondary importance were the quiet, firm warnings to Argentina and other neutrals that they cannot remain neutral in such a struggle; as well as the deft depositing of a little salt on the ambitions of the most visionary new dealers who have been conjuring up a millennium for the post-war world.

As Mr. Hull went on the air, published maps indicated the nazis were still on the west side of the lower Don, but they had actually crossed it at two strategic points. Timoshenko's army was then caught in two bad pockets.

The first was east of Stalingrad, where a large Russian force was faced by the nazi in front and the Don on two other sides. The other pocket was pinching Rostov.

To extricate himself from this second net, a fast retirement by Timoshenko seemed necessary. But at both ends of the battle line in the first pocket, the nazis already had crossed the Don, northward and southward, and were moving toward Stalingrad from three directions.

No one here knew how much Timoshenko had in reserve. It was clear he had offered no real resistance thus far to the nazi advance, except at the extreme northern end of the battle line around Voronezh. Officials were little better informed than the public about the disposition of the Russian forces or with a knowledge of what to expect.

They could foresee the possible fall of the Caucasus developing, perhaps within a month after the fall of Stalingrad and Rostov. They had to face the possibility that the Russians might even wind up the summer with the loss of Leningrad and Moscow, and be thrown back upon a line running roughly from Astrakhan to Murmansk. Any notion that the Reds might surrender, however, did not enter any official mind. All were desperately impatient for signs of the expected Russian counter-attack.

Hull's idea for the post-war world recognized and accepted many aims of Vice-President Wallace and his corps of promoters, but leveled these down to an entirely different plane. Hull advocated "cooperation among nations," not a new league of nations, or a single world democracy, or "union now." He advocated helping needy nations which show genuine willingness to cooperate fairly in a new world trade system, not a free-for-all new deal spending program to industrialize the world at our expense.

While he wanted an international police force and disarmament, he talked none of Wallace's wage scales for remote peoples or the quart of milk a day for the beer-drinking workers of Europe and other dietary matters.

Here again Hull seemed to be standing at the right of the new deal, facing the extremists of the left—a fact which suggests that Roosevelt may be preparing the way to emerge eventually with a program of his own lying halfway between the two.

Among the toes upon which Hull seemed lightly to tread were those of Dr. Alvin H. Hansen, Harvard, special thinker for the Natural Resources Planning Board. Hansen offered his views for the post-war world in an interview published in the Chicago Journal of Commerce, June 27.

He advocated "boldness." He wants "an administrative democracy," which sounds very much more like a centralized state than a people's government, with a federal debt burden of perhaps $250,000,000,000 or more to start with; continuation of the existing tax scale on the people, continued price and production controls on business, and something sensationally new—to the public at least—a surrender by congress to the president of specific powers over spending and taxation, whereby congress would merely fix the limits and let the executive department fix the taxes and work out the spending.

In this last instance again, he would take power from the direct representatives of the people in congress, and put it into the hands of one man.

Writer Describes Life at Newfoundland Ferry Stop

Crews at Station Keep Planes Moving to Britain

An Air Base Somewhere in Newfoundland—(Wide World)—The fighting planes of the United Nations' forces stationed here, is this: "We'll get things done, we'll make things hum."

"We'll send you ships to Britain; and if these dam' things can't be done, 'We'll all be off to quitting'."

They're not quitting. They're sending ships to Britain through this wilderness station in great flocks.

Five years ago this spot was a wild, desolate region of rock and scrub pine and spruce forest. Now it's one of the largest airports in the world. From the lonely outposts the planes take off for the last leg of the journey to England—a 2,000 mile flight.

Some day this place may become an important stopping place for commercial trans-Atlantic aviation.

Around the flying field, the hangars and administration buildings, new construction is underway. Runways are being lengthened greatly. New buildings are going up. Tractors are yanking stumps out of the thin, rocky soil.

Always on Guard Anti-aircraft guns point their snouts into the sky from strategic locations. Machine gun nests ring the field. Canadian and American troops stand guard everywhere.

Just before we arrived here, an RAF lieutenant started across a runway at dusk. A sentry challenged him and then opened fire. The lieutenant complained to his commanding officer.

"Did the shot hit you?" the officer asked.

"No."

"Then, I shall see that the guard gets some additional target practice," was the curt reply.

The sun doesn't fall over the horizon until 11 p. m., and it's up again five hours later, so that the little airport city never seems to sleep. The several thousand British, Americans, Canadians and Newfoundlanders here have nowhere to go and nothing much to do except work.

Here the bombers get their final check and fueling for the long haul. As each ship lands from an airfield somewhere in Canada, a crew of expert mechanics gives it a final, thorough going over to make sure everything is in perfect condition.

While the mechanics are at work and tanks are being filled with gasoline, the pilots and crews get the latest weather reports and map their flight plans on the basis of prevailing wind and cloud conditions.

Makes Own Decisions

No one ever orders a ferry pilot to take off at a given time or on a certain date. Each pilot makes his own decisions about when to leave, for he is considered the best judge of the range of his ship, the gas load, fuel consumption and other things with which he must contend once he gets out over the Atlantic. This is an important factor in the low rate of ships lost by the Royal Air Force Ferry Command.

When the weather closes in and the flights are cancelled, then the pilots gather at the inn or at the home of a friend to swap stories of their flights.

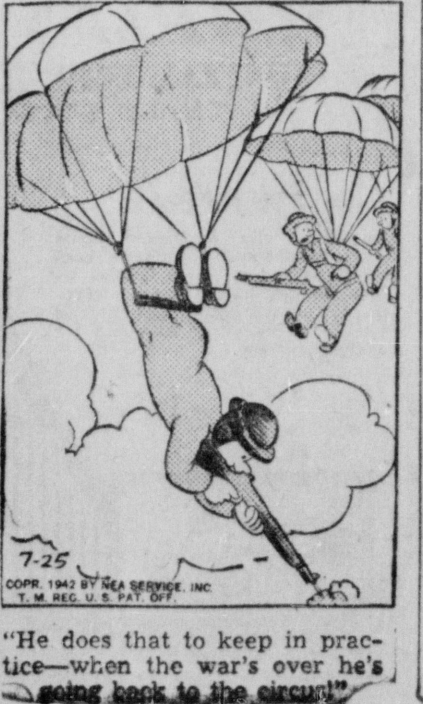

Most of the civilian pilots with the RAF Ferry Command are Americans, like Clyde Pangborn, Duke Schiller of Onawa, Iowa, Bob Smith of Atlanta, Ga., serious Bob Leroy of Los Angeles, Jack Terry of Clarksdale, Miss., Bob Coffman of Baton Rouge, and Earl Orman of Los Angeles.

The majority are married and live with their families in or near Montreal. They're the flying elite, since they draw $1,000 each month during the first year of service, $1,100 the second and $1,200 the third year.

Most of the civilian pilots are a dashing, carefree lot. They play hard between trips, although some live as quietly as ultra-conservative businessmen. They try to think of themselves as ordinary folk, but they aren't.

Commander of 33rd Division Killed in Plane Crash Friday

Major General Mahin and 2 Soldiers Victims of Aerial Tragedy

Camp Forrest, Tenn., July 25.—(AP)—Memorial services will be held tomorrow in Engineers Chapel for Maj. Gen. Frank C. Mahin, 54-year-old commanding general of the 33rd division here, who died in the crash of an Army observation plane near Waynesboro, Tenn. yesterday.

The cause of the crash remained undetermined but persons who visited the scene said the plane struck a tree five miles from Waynesboro.

Following the Camp Forrest services, the general's body will be sent to Washington for burial in Arlington cemetery Tuesday.

Waynesboro, Tenn., July 25.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Frank C. Mahin, regular army veteran who in May took over the command of the 33rd (Illinois) division, was killed in an army airplane crash Friday.

An army official said he was flying from Camp Forrest at Tullahoma, where the 33rd division has been training since March, 1941, en route to Fort Sill, Okla. The army observation plane crashed into a tree on a farm near here just before noon.

Two other soldiers were killed. They were identified as Lieut. Robert F. Turk of Wichita, Kan., and Sergt. John Cameron of Alamo, Tex., both attached to the 12th observation squadron at Tullahoma.

Two months ago Gen. Mahin was placed in charge of the division of former Illinois national guard outfits. He succeeded Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton of Chicago, who was made chief of the central defense command.

Professional Soldier
Mahin, 54, was a professional soldier and had served 32 years in the regular army. Born in Clinton, Ia., his father was Frank W. Mahin, retired consular official and former owner of the Clinton Herald.

As a youth in England Mahin was a member of an English Territorial regiment. He was graduated from Harvard, served in the New York national guard and joined the regular army in 1910. Two years later he was commissioned.

In France he was wounded at St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne. He was married and the father of three married daughters.

BANNERS FLYING

COPYRIGHT, 1942, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CHAPTER I

WHEN the Colton twins—Christie and Janet—were born, everybody in Westwood said they were as alike as two peas in a pod. But they were not many weeks old before their great-aunt Lawrence remarked dryly: "As alike as sunshine and moonshine." Which, later, proved an apt comparison.

All through their baby days it had been Christie who audaciously led, planned and executed the nursery activities. The difference was more marked in later childhood and was emphasized during high school and college.

They had the same lovely brown hair with golden lights in it; the same blue-gray eyes, fringed by incredibly long lashes; the same curving, sweetly-molded mouths, the same youthful, lithe figures. Only it was Christie who glowed and sparkled, and Janet who went about in a soft reflection of that glow.

It was Christie who was high in the air, now, circling over the modest Westwood airport. And Janet who stood on the ground, her blue eyes anxiously glued to the circling plane.

Janet did not know that at the moment the courage and confidence of her twin was at low ebb, and that Christie's anxiety more than matched her own.

Tommy Colton, their brother, was watching, too. But he was not troubled. Christie's uncanny luck would always hold out. Now, if Janet were in that plane, you'd really have something to worry about. Bill Blake, the young mechanic at the airport, was another cool observer; and some distance away instructor Russ Lawton, manager of the local airport—and, finally, Bart Sanderson.

Goodlooking Bart Sanderson had been known as Westwood's "flyingest fellow" before he went in for medicine. He had grown up flying any old crate he could get his hands on. During high school days he had hung around the airport, scoring parties and pretty girls. He had come home from medical college still indifferent to both and still a flying fan.

More than one person had suspected that if any girl could prick Bart's indifference, it would be Christie Colton. But, of course, Bart had his pride, and anybody knew that a young doctor-to-be, intern now in an eastern hospital, was no match for a daughter of Westwood's richest citizen.

Bart had had a few dates with Christie. When he danced with her there was that "certain something"—a look in his eyes—but there had never been a hint that he ever intended to ask popular Christie to marry him.

"Wonder if he knows who's up in that plane," Russ thought, as Bart came toward him. But Bart's grin face was his answer.

"He'd probably knock me down. If he knew I tricked her into a solo, although I probably saved her a bad case of nerves," Russ thought. He was feeling a little jittery. He wished Christie would come down out of that sky.

IT had been one of those days for Christie. She had begun her lesson that afternoon in a blue mood. All this time, and Russ had never mentioned a solo. She probably never would go up alone. Everything she had done today was wrong, and Russ had been saying so in no ladylike manner. He was probably getting ready to wash her up. This was probably her last landing.

Russ had leaped out of the plane, loosening his safety belt. Then his arm shot up straight and rigid, his usual signal to take off. Christie had moved in automatic obedience. Suddenly, her eyes glued to the control stick moving up there in front—all by itself.

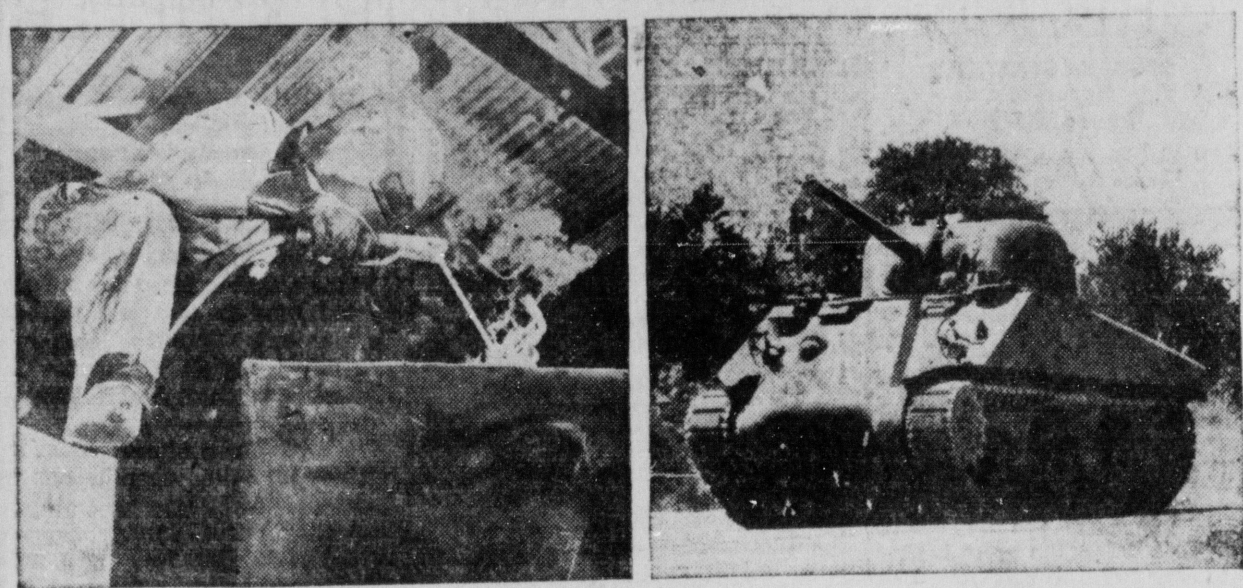

Heavens, not by itself at all. She was moving it back here in

"I'm glad to find you all in one piece," Bart said. "If you had stayed up much longer I'd have gone after you."

ALL-WELDED MEDIUM TANK

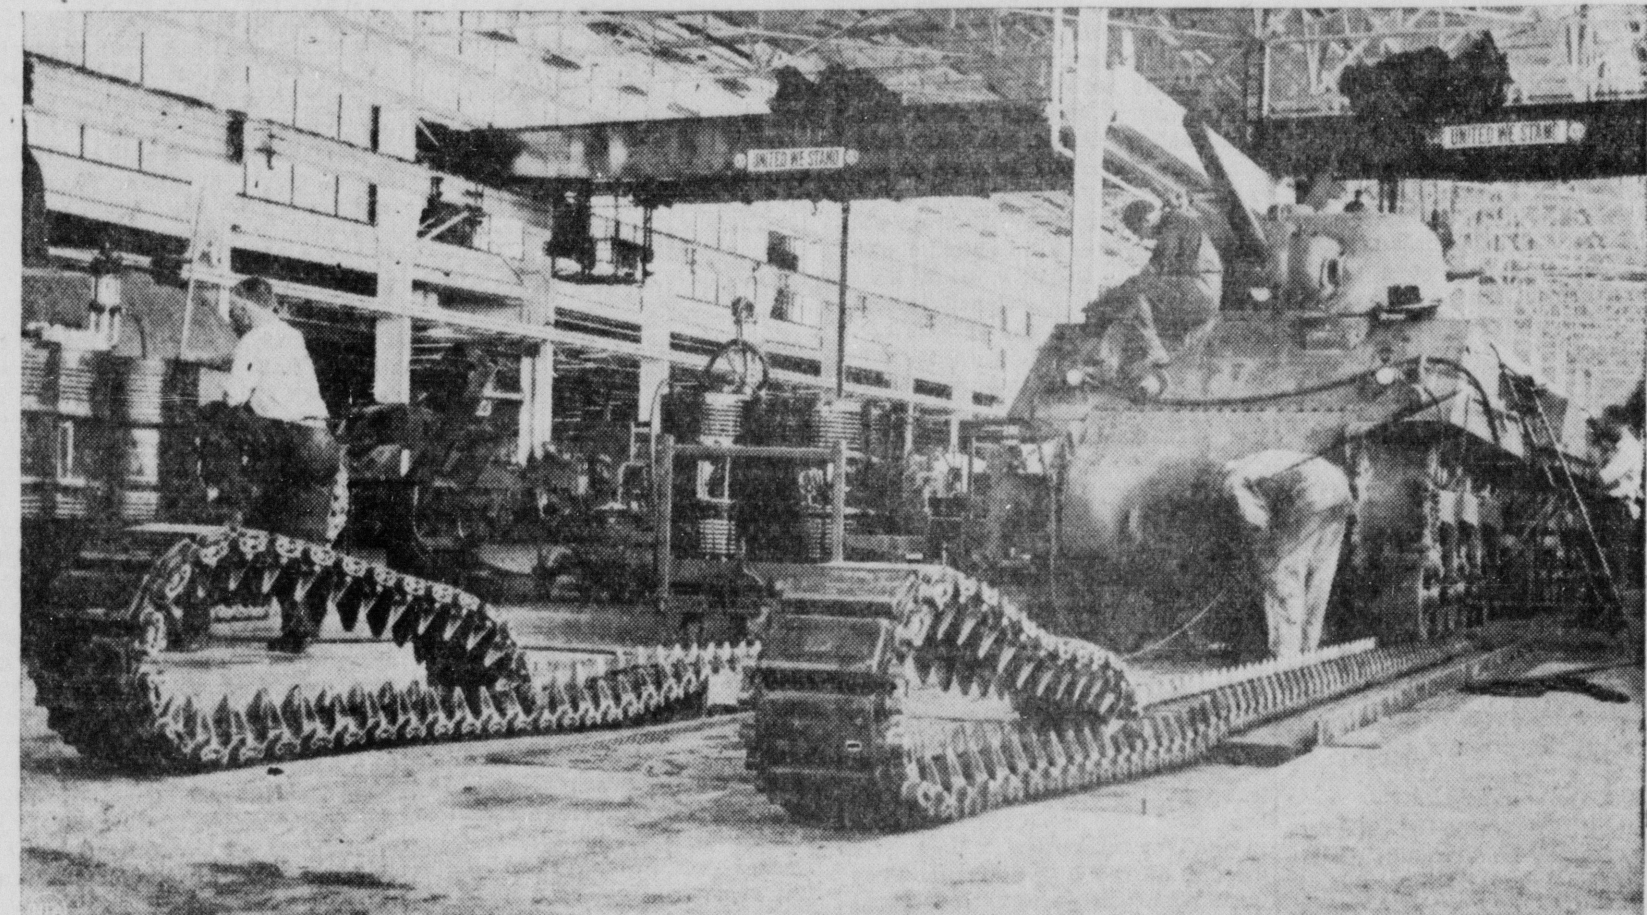

Six months ago: a rolling field. Today: a roaring war factory turning out many of the new all-welded M-4 tanks. That's the story of a General Motors tank factory somewhere in Michigan. Coming off the assembly line in train-load quantities, the medium tanks feature increased fire power, improved location of the 75-mm. gun in a turret revolving in a complete circle, high maneuverability, very heavy armor plate—in addition to the all-welded construction. These pictures and captions have been reviewed by the War Department.

Merchants Should Be Familiar With All Gov't. Agencies

Pamphlets Published by Gov't. Give Needed Information

Washington (Wide World)—Many a businessman, talking of his troubles in the fight for war contracts, refers to "the government" as though it were as simple as city hall.

Yet the government, always a hydra-headed giant, has sprouted dozens of new heads for the big war job. And the big task of selling war goods is to find the head that knows your usefulness.

The first trick in the game is to know your government.

In place of the route books and market analyses of peacetime, the seller today needs to have a handy shelf of the latest publications on the government and its war-time setup.

Things change so fast that such books become out-of-date almost as soon as they are printed.

Here are a few current reference books for your war production shelf:

United States Government Manual: An omnibus index of all the departments, bureaus, agencies and offices of the federal government. Describes the functions and authority of every agency, with organization charts of the major divisions, including war agencies. Carries a long index of names, as well as a subject index. Regular supplements keep it up to date. (U. S. Information Service, 75 cents).

OEM handbook: Gives duties and principal officers of all war agencies, including all branches of the War Production Board, Office of Price Administration and Office of Defense Transportation. Current issue out-of-date and out-of-print. New issue expected about September 1 (Superintendent of Documents, 15 cents).

NAM Handbook on War Production: Covers all government agencies of interest to a manufacturer. Compiled by non-government experts. Includes useful chapters on "selling to the government," material on priorities, describes all purchasing agencies, giving location and type of material bought. New issue just coming out. (National Association of Manufacturers. Free to members; $1 to outsiders).

U. S. Chamber of Commerce Directory of War Agencies: Gives names and addresses of agencies, and all regional and district offices. Compiled by non-government experts. Out-of-date in places. (Chamber of Commerce

Tax Levy Ordinance—

The annual tax levy ordinance for the city was presented and read to the members of the city council at the regular meeting last evening. The ordinance reduces the total taxation about $2,500 for the next year, and was placed on file with City Clerk Wayne Smith until next Friday evening when it will be officially acted upon.

Arrested in Franklin—

Kenneth Tompkins of Sterling was arrested in Franklin Grove last evening by Deputy Sheriff Henry Wilson, following a collision in which an automobile driven by Earl Buck of that place was damaged. Arraigned this morning in Justice J. O. Shaull's court, Tompkins was assessed a fine of $10 and costs and ordered to make restitution for damages.

Co. A Drill Tuesday—

Officers of Co. A, I. R. M., stated today that regular drill periods will be instituted Tuesday instead of Monday night beginning Tuesday, July 28. This will be the first official visit of Col. Lee Simmons, who has been assigned to the Sixth Corps Area of the War Department to assist in the instruction of the First battalion, Third Infantry, of which Co. A is a member. Every member of Co. A is expected to be present to receive this instruction.

Two Women Seek Divorces—

Two divorce petitions have been filed in the Lee county Circuit court. Mabel Marquis of this city in her complaint charges Michael Marquis with desertion and she asks the custody of a minor son, Melvin. They were married in Dixon, Sept. 25, 1928. Mrs. Edna Burke in her petition charges that Archie Burke deserted her and asks the custody of two minor children, Eleanor and Deloris. They were married at Bloomington, Oct. 3, 1935.

New Time Card Sunday—

A new time card, affecting two eastbound trains which service Dixon, will go into effect on the North Western at 2:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Train No. 22 will hereafter leave Dixon at 4:47 a. m. instead of 4:51; and will arrive in Chicago at 7:15. Train No. 88, which stops here on Sundays only, will leave at 5:00 a. m., 18 minutes earlier than now, and will arrive in Chicago at 7:30 o'clock. The corrected time table is published in page 4 of this issue of The Telegraph.

JAPANESE ADVANCE

Chungking, July 25—(AP)—A new Japanese advance in eastern Chekiang province was admitted today by the Chinese high command, which said its troops were evacuating Sinchang after an enemy column 3,000 strong advanced from Fenghua, the birthplace of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. The column advanced through Tungyang, about 37 miles east of Kinhuwa on the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway and met with bitter fighting at the outskirts of Shenkhsiet on July 14, the communique said. To the north, in southern Honan province, Chinese ambushed a number of Japanese ammunition trucks northwest of Sinyang at a bridge and killed more than 100 of the enemy, the communique added.

Polo Miss Explains How She Wounded Sterling Soldier

Accident Occurred While Two Were Shooting at Targets

Sterling, July 25—Miss Wilma Reiff of Polo told Sterling police Friday she fired the .22 caliber rifle bullet which apparently ricocheted off a tin pail and wounded Pvt. Kenje Ogata, 23, Camp Grant soldier, while they were target shooting Thursday on the banks of Elkhorn creek.

Ogata, an American-born Japanese who enlisted in the army about six months ago, was reported in "satisfactory" condition last night at Sterling Home hospital. Ogata, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clay K. Ogata, long-time residents of Sterling, is suffering from a puncture wound in the abdomen.

Miss Reiff told authorities she had been shooting at objects thrown into the creek by Ogata and a bullet apparently glanced off the pail and struck the soldier.

The girl was taken to the scene of the mishap and re-enacted what happened. She said she was standing under a bridge a mile and a half north of McCue's corner firing at objects tossed into the creek by Ogata, who, she said, was standing about 30 feet to her right.

Ogata was able to walk from the creek bank to an automobile and was driven to the hospital by Miss Reiff, who was questioned by Police Officer Ed Onda of Sterling.

Hospital physicians said Ogata's condition has improved. He is expected to recover.

zero. There were no reports of deaths among American prisoners from mistreatment, but a number of British nationals committed suicide in prison.

A score of American priests, captured in Hongkong on Christmas Day, said they were marched to a ravine for execution, then relieved at the last moment. They were held in a garage for three days, tied in groups with insufficient water and food.

The United Press received a dispatch from its correspondent Robert Bellare telling how he and Joseph Dyan of The Associated Press were beaten and choked by the Japanese when they refused to write certain statements. His dispatch said in part:

"Officials of the Home Office questioned me repeatedly and at great length in an effort to get me to admit that my activity as a press association reporter had included illegal espionage. Since I had done nothing which I considered illegal I made no admissions.

"An official who was superintending the questioning then demanded that I write a statement to the effect that I had been well-treated. This I refused to do until I had been badly choked. The officer seized my necktie, pulled it constantly tighter and tighter until it was impossible to breathe. I then was forced to write a statement along lines he dictated.

"Dyan told me that he had much the same experience. A Home Office official demanded that he write a statement on the subject, 'The good treatment I received from the Japanese during wartime.' When he refused he was beaten. He was hit in the face and several teeth, in a bridge, were knocked out.

In the same story Bellare said that Otto Tollisch, chief correspondent of the New York Times in Tokyo, was taken in custody and charged with espionage and violation of the national defense act. Bellare's dispatch continued:

"He was forced to sit, Japanese style, with his heels against his hips, until wounds opened on his legs. He was slapped repeatedly during questioning by police and once was partly strangled. Police threatened him with a court martial and a firing squad.

"Max Hill, chief correspondent of The Associated Press in Tokyo, was threatened with similar treatment unless he gave information about an 'alleged spy ring.'" proved the bill by a vote of 104 to 18.

(Advices received by The Associated Press stated that Hill was not actually mistreated.)

Farm Bloc Solid

The farm bloc voted solidly for the legislation. Chairman Fulmer (D-SC) of the agriculture committee, said "the people want this bill because the government's rubber program has failed."

Meantime Price Administrator Leon Henderson disclosed plans for further drastic curtailments in use of rubber. He already has eliminated 100,000 trucks delivering soft drinks, hard drinks and other non-essential materials from the tire eligibility lists.

"Applications for truck tires by eligible operators have overrun the quotas," Henderson said. "We can't increase these quotas enough. We are having to choose between vital operations and semi-luxuries."

Friday, July 31 Last Day to Buy Auto-Use Stamps

Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, stated today that the reports he has received indicate most persons subject to the $5 automobile use tax stamps have complied with the federal law.

He stated, however, that there are some who have not purchased these stamps and others who are not complying with the law by their proper display.

These stamps may be purchased from local post offices up to and including July 31st. After that date, all stamps will have to be purchased from the office of the collector of internal revenue in Chicago.

Harrison stated that this would be his final notice to taxpayers to purchase these stamps and called attention to the fact that any person operating a motor vehicle on the highway without the use tax stamp affixed to the windshield is subject to a penalty of $25 or thirty days in prison for failure to purchase the stamp or to have the stamp affixed to the motor vehicle.

He stated it would be the policy of the internal revenue service to vigorously pursue to a conclusion any violation of this act and that beginning August 1 he intends reporting all violations to the United States District Attorney for prosecution.

Review of Week

New York, July 25—(Wide World)—President Roosevelt this week sought a way to beat inflation on submission and the industrial face of America began to undergo a change.

WPB Chief Donald M. Nelson approved the British principle of industrial concentration which would center future essential civilian production in certain plants and sections of the country.

He said there would be a selection of "nucleus" firms for the concentration of production so that cross-hauling might be eliminated where possible and the drain on transportation facilities reduced to a minimum.

Amid widely expressed fears that price controls as now in effect could not stem inflation, leaders of organized management and labor paid an unusual "unity" call upon the president.

The visit followed strong indications the president would either use his present powers—or ask congress for more—to put an iron check on living costs.

It seemed likely he would seek labor-management concurrence in whatever plans he made.

His visitors were Eric Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States; William P. Witherow, president of the National Association of manufacturers; William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

The CIO and AFL jointly asked the president to forbid any "interference" with wage rates by the Office of Price Administration.

The president had been urged widely to curb wages and farm prices, both of which had remained outside the ceilings clamped by the OPA on most of the things Americans buy.

While stern action was impending in the White House, the War Shipping Administration disclosed somber news.

It announced that sinkings of United Nations vessels "have greatly exceeded new construction" of ships.

This news followed soon after the Maritime Commission cancelled the contract it had given Andrew J. Higgins, New Orleans shipbuilder, for 200 Liberty ships on the ground that shipyards already building vessels or soon to build them needed all available steel.

In the midst of these developments Nelson warned against undue optimism over the possibility of creation of enormous fleets of huge freighter aircraft to offset the loss of seaborne cargo space.

Old 'L' Cars to Haul Illinois War Workers

St. Louis, July 25—(AP)—Fifty-six old railroad cars which have carried thousands of New Yorkers to and from work over the Sixth avenue "L" are coming back into service hauling war workers between three central Illinois communities, Springfield, Decatur and Illiopolis.

They have been purchased by the government and will be operated by the Illinois Terminal railroad, which has an arrangement to provide shuttle service for each eight-hour shift of war workers.

Each car will provide accommodations for more than 100 passengers, said Harold G. Powell, Illinois Terminal vice president. Some arrangement regarding transportation charges will be made, he added, to eliminate the collection of fares on the trains.

The cars will be overhauled at the American Car and Foundry Co., plant at St. Charles, Mo., and at the Illinois Terminal shops at Decatur. The first ones are expected to be ready for service in about a month or six weeks.

Red Cross Activities

The surgical dressings considered necessary by the Army and Navy to cover their prospective needs are so much in excess of the established manufacturing facilities of the country that the government is compelled to rely on the Red Cross organization to turn out 90 per cent of this material. The Ogle County Chapter sent three delegates to an institute now being held at Rockford to receive instruction in the making of these dressings, and these delegates in turn will hold classes for the instruction of supervisors of various work units soon to be established through the county. Mrs. Henry Cottlow of Oregon has been appointed county chairman of the surgical dressing activity and will direct the work of organization.

Home nursing classes are now operating or have completed courses in the last seven months in Oregon, Byron, Polo, Mt. Morris, Stillman Valley, Davis Junction, and Lindenwood. Enrolled in these classes there have been approximately 200 women. This is an important step contributing to the maintenance of national health at a time when communities are losing so many of their physicians and nurses to the armed forces. The county chairman of this activity is Mrs. Alfred Davis, of Mt. Morris.

The Red Cross sewing group of the county, under the leadership of Mrs. Robert Etnyre as chairman, have accepted a quota of about 1500 garments, and Mrs. Etnyre is now busy getting the work under way in the various sewing groups throughout the county.

Mrs. Martin Peterman, chairman of the knitting activity was recently asked to set aside other quotas on which work was under way in order to rush through 125 sweaters and 60 helmets, which are desired by August 15. Maybe you have noticed the olive drab yarn being manipulated by busy fingers in all sorts of odd places. One woman was recently observed working one of these sweaters while waiting to be wheeled to the operating room at one of our hospitals.

Alonso McGinnis, of Rochelle, is chairman of first aid work and the latest class to be organized in that work will comprise a group of those connected with the Oregon fire department, with William C. Beaman acting as instructor.

The Home Service work, under the experienced leadership of Miss Elizabeth Chase Peek as chairman, is averaging nearly a case per day referred to her from training camps of the armed forces. These cases comprise all those emergency situations arising which require contact between men of the armed forces and their families at home, and the Red Cross is the official agency through which all such cases must clear for investigation and assistance.

Ogle county has eight organized branches of the Red Cross, with headquarters and branch chairmen as follows:

Rochelle branch—Mrs. Laura Lindgren.
Polo branch—Mrs. Alvis Buck.
Mt. Morris branch—Mrs. Alfred Davis.

Byron branch—Mrs. Max DeFouw.
Forreston branch—Dr. B. G. Wood.

Grand Detour branch—Mrs. Holger Jensen.
White Rock Branch—Mrs. George Oakes.

Oregon branch—Gerald Garard. These branches all work under the direction of a county organization whose headquarters are in Oregon.

Samuel Etnyre, of Oregon, has been appointed chairman of the finance and roll call activity of the Ogle county chapter. There will be no roll call this fall, but in March, 1943, there will be a combined roll call and war fund campaign. This step has been taken to conserve the time of workers connected with these financial activities.

Ogle county's acceptance of the Red Cross as an organization ably facing huge tasks was well expressed in the roll call of last fall, when the county membership in the Red Cross increased over 70 per cent above that of the previous year, and when Ogle county was called on to raise a Red Cross War Fund of $6200, it responded with a total of $7100.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Frank of Cedarville will be Sunday guests of the M. M. Members.

Mr. and Mrs. Luverne Swanson and children Audrey and Wayne are spending the week end with relatives and friends in Chicago. Miss Jean Hinrichs has gone to Indianapolis to spend a ten-day vacation with her uncle, Dr. A. G. Hinrichs, and family.

W. H. McMaster transacted business in Chicago yesterday. John King returned Friday to Springfield, Vt., where he holds an important position, after a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred King.

crash the gateway. If you will look again at your map, you will see that he could badly cripple the Russians by capturing the big industrial and rail center of Stalingrad on the Volga, towards which the nazi eastward drive is now headed. It's vital to the fuhrer that he hamstring Russia now so that he may be able to meet the threatened allied invasion of western Europe.

Therefore the battle of the Caucasus shortly is likely to break into two major engagements, one at the gateway in the Rostov sector of the lower Don, and the other for Stalingrad. In fact, we may have a third engagement growing out of this situation, for the Reds continue on the offensive at Voronezh, on the upper Don.

That push into the Voronezh sector may have great possibilities. This city is at the extreme left flank of the nazi offensive, and if the Muscovites do get a major drive under way there it will create a very grave threat to the invading armies to the south. A Red breakthrough there likely would vastly lessen the seriousness of the Russian position. We must await developments, though, for the picture isn't yet clear.

In any event, the battles on the lower Don and for Stalingrad are likely to be sanguinary and protracted. They will take time which Hitler can't afford to spare. Don't forget that if he can be held until winter comes, he will be in a mighty bad way.

To Standardize Making of Red Cross Bandages

JAKE WADE PITCHES SOX TO 2-1 WIN OVER ATHLETICS

HOME RUN BLOW BY BABE YOUNG BEATS REDS, 3-2

Boston Divides Pair With Browns; Cubs' Game Postponed

By the Associated Press

There are more ways than one to win a baseball game, but the formula employed with increasing success by the New York Giants is to harness all the power available, even if it means sending infielders to the outfield and regulars to the scrap heap.

The latest of masterful Melvin Ott's experiments took big Babe Young off the bench, which he had warmed all season because Johnny Mize was doing a brisk business at the Babe's old first base stand, and spotted him in center field.

Young came through yesterday with an eleventh inning homer—his second game-winning circuit clout in as many days—to give the Giants a 3-2 decision over the Cincinnati Reds.

Yesterday's wallop not only stopped Cincinnati and Bucky Walters, but it saved third place in the National league standings for the Giants, who now own a margin of a game and a half over the Reds.

The game was one of a trio of extra-inning affairs in the major leagues' nine-game program for the day and night.

Red Sox, Indians Tied
A pair of twilight-night double-headers broke precedent in two American league cities and left the Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians in a virtual deadlock for second place, eleven and a half games behind the pennant-bound New York Yankees.

At St. Louis, where an unusually large crowd of 21,000 took advantage of the 5:30 starting time, the Red Sox whipped the Browns, 5-3, in the twilight opener of their bargain bill, but once under the lights, the teams battled eleven innings before Chet Laabs gave the Browns the nod with a two-run homer.

It was the 19th of the year for Laabs and tied him with Mize of the Giants and Ted Williams of the Red Sox for the major league leadership.

At Cleveland, the Indians edged out the Washington Senators, 4-3 and 5-4, to climb within two percentage points of the Red Sox.

Yanks Blank Detroit
Jake Wade registered his second straight triumph since being picked up by the Chicago White Sox, shading Dick Fowler as he pitched a 2-1 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics in a night contest.

The only afternoon game in the American league saw the Yankees blank the Detroit Tigers, 3-0, on the four-hit pitching of Spud Chandler, who gained his eleventh triumph against two defeats.

The Brooklyn Dodgers and the St. Louis Cardinals maintained their one-two pace atop the National league with little trouble.

Whitlow Wyatt stopped the Pittsburgh Pirates with seven hits as Brooklyn triumphed, 6-4, and preserved a seven-game lead.

Lefty Max Lanier shut out the Boston Braves on six hits while his Cardinal mates collected 16 and coasted to an 8-0 victory.

A night game between the Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Phils was postponed.

Chicago Policeman, Off Duty, Kills Holdup Man

Chicago, July 25.—(AP)—A policeman who was off duty ran into his house last night, seized his service pistol and ran out again to slay an escaping robber.

The dead man was identified by police as George Karch, 26, an unemployed Chicagoan. In his pockets, they said, was found $75 which had been taken from a liquor store a short time before.

Karch, with a crowd at his heels, fled past the home of Policeman Carl Pabloski. He was firing in the general direction of his pursuers before Pabloski got his gun and returned the fire. Michael Rarasiuk, 32, a friend of Pabloski's, was wounded in the shoulder by one of the robber's bullets.

NEA Service

Teddy Broadbribb writes that Sgt. Freddie Mills, who attracted attention on the other side by quickly flattening Jock McAvoy and Len Harvey, is one sizeable fellow who will fail to carry out all of the fine old traditions of the British ring by remaining perpendicular.

Broadbribb describes Sergeant Mills, who is 23, as looking like the late Young Stribling and fighting like Mickey Walker.

Mills is a little heavier than a cruiser weight, and Broadbribb testifies that he would weigh as much as 183 for a heavyweight.

Inasmuch as he manages Mills, you ordinarily would discount Broadbribb's puff, but the man who brought Tommy Farr and others to this country is noted for his conservatism in appraising even his own warriors.

Sergeant Mills easily could be the boy for Corp. Joe Louis in a great international match.

Sports Poll

By ORTMAN

Returns were few and far between this morning in the local All-Star balloting. Only 90 votes—not even 100, were polled since yesterday for Don Miller and Gerald Ankeny for positions on the college grid team which will oppose the Chicago Bears in Soldiers' Field, Aug. 28.

However, this doesn't worry me because I expect the ballots to come rolling in in masses today and tomorrow. This afternoon I will make my final rounds of the stores which have had petitions. This will not be done though until the paper has gone to press so you will have to wait until Monday to learn the final results.

It is not too late for you to send in your vote. The polls close at midnight tomorrow, but I must have all the votes in my hands tomorrow afternoon so I can send them in to Chicago before the deadline. This still gives you enough time to get behind Miller and Ankeny.

The ballot appears for the last time in the upper right hand corner of this page. Clip it out and send it in immediately. If you go early enough you can still sign your name to one of the petitions in the following stores:

Myers and Nolan, Sterling's Pharmacy, Fanelli's Cafe, United Cigar Store, Tony's Soda Grill, Ideal Cafe, The Roundup, Snow White Bakery, Doug's Three Deuces, Howard Hall's Appliances, Phillip's Bake Shop, Dixon Hotel, Railway Express, James and Son Billiards, Dixon Floral Shop, Skip's Cafe, Boynton-Richards, Maid Rite Sandwich Shop, DeLuxe Cleaners, I. N. U., Cromwell's Electric Shop and Ford Hopkins Drug Store.

At this writing 1507 votes have been polled for Miller and Ankeny. Time is short and there are a lot of you who haven't voted. Why don't you? But don't wait, because you have to VOTE NOW!

As the fans throughout the nation rushed furiously to get in their last minute voting, some rather surprising changes were noticed in the rankings of the college stars.

Don Green, Iowa fullback, has taken over the lead in that department and Bob Westfall of Michigan has dropped into third behind Ohio State's Jack Graf.

Bill Dudley, Virginia's 20-year-old star, has jumped into the driver's seat in the halfback race. Yesterday he was holding down third place, spot now occupied by Juzwik of Notre Dame. Bruce Smith of Minnesota is in second.

Frankowski of Washington has knocked Crummins out of the No. 1 standing in the guard tussle into the No. 2 slot. Bob Jeffries of Missouri has dropped into third, the place vacated by Frankowski in his sudden rise.

Mal Kutner of Texas and Kovatch of Notre Dame have switched places in the battle for leading end honors. Kovatch is now first; Kutner is second and Bob Ringer of Minnesota is still third.

Lillis and Bauman changed standings in the tackle department with Bauman moving up to second and Lillis dropping into third. Blozis, giant 6 feet 7½ inches Georgetown star, is still No. 1 man.

The rankings in the quarterback and center departments remain the same as they were yesterday. Banonis continues as leader in the scrap for the starting center role with Jenkins second and Lindskog of Stanford third.

Erdlitz and Kruger are one-two in the quarterback fight with Al Couppee holding down third place.

GIB SELLERS LEADS TAM O'SHANTER OPEN

Ward and Wehrle Meet in Finals of All-American Amateur

By GAYLE TALBOT

Chicago, July 25.—(AP)—Leading the nation's topnotch golfers as the $15,000 Tam O'Shanter open swung into the third round today was one Gib Sellers, a strapping professional from Walled Lake, Mich., whose brilliant rounds of 68-69 the last two days lifted him abruptly out of comparative obscurity.

Gib (short for Gibson down in the Arkansas hill country where he was born and learned his golf) was a stroke ahead of the defending champion, Byron Nelson, and two blows in front of his next closest pursuers, Clayton Heafner and Dick Metz. It was heady company for a player who in 13 years of golf had reached his heights by winning the Arkansas and Michigan Open titles.

Frankly, despite Gib's whirlwind start, Nelson remained the favorite. The tall Toledo star still was at the top of his game, and when he is like that he comes close to being impossible to beat in a medal tournament. Lawson Little, who shared the lead with Nelson after the first round with 67's, fell off to a poor 73 yesterday and was three strokes off the pace.

Natural Attraction
Meeting in the 36-hole final of the Tam O'Shanter Amateur championship today were Corp. Marvin (Bud) Ward, the National champion, and Wilford Wehrle of Racine, Wis., former Western Amateur titlist. It was a natural, and promised to draw a good portion of the huge crowds swarming over Tam O'Shanter.

Ward reached the final yesterday by subduing Mike Stolaik of Great Lakes Naval Training station, 6 and 5, while Wehrle eliminated John Holmstrom of Rockford, Ill., 5 and 4. The leading amateur in the open competition was Frank Stranahan of Toledo, with rounds of 72-69—141 the last two days. Pat Abbott of Pasadena was next with 71-72—143.

Ben Hogen, the champion money-winner, had 69, placing him in a tie with Little and Herman Scharlau, an assistant pro at Bloomington, Ill., at 140.

BONUS FOR FANNING MAKES MAD RUSSIAN INTO SLUGGER

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

New York.—What so suddenly transformed Louis Novikoff from an All-America out to an outstanding National league slugger? The change came just when Jimmy Wilson and the others had made up their minds that, as a major league hitter, Lou Novikoff was an excellent harmonica player, Irish tenor and gag man.

But Chicago Cub fans, hungry for someone to root for, shouted for Novikoff until Jim Gallagher suggested that the Mad Russian be employed regularly.

President Gallagher grasped the bucks office value of the Bruins' first colorful performer since Hack Wilson.

That gave Novikoff his first real big league opportunity. Manager Wilson lectured Novikoff on hustle, related the success stories of others who refused to permit adversity to get them down. He told Novikoff the story of Morrie Aronovich, who had that one big year with the Phils in little more than the old college try.

Had To Pay Only $30
But the momentum that swept Novikoff, from a bloke who could not hit the ball out of the infield and took too many third strikes to a confident .300, third-slugger of tremendous power, came when Philip K. Wrigley gave the squatty gent from Los Angeles' Boyle Heights a $10 bonus for striking out swinging.

Novikoff, who led every minor league in which he performed, is a free-swinging bad ball hitter. He is just as likely to hit a ball over his head or a pitch out or to golf one as he is to pickle a pippin.

Naturally, Novikoff was advised against that in the big show. The result was that, in guarding against the practice, he looked at too many third strikes.

That is, he did until Owner Phil Wrigley called him into his office.

Magnate Wrigley has had to pay him only $30 to date, for he has let a third strike slip by without taking a rifle at it only three times since they made their little deal.

With his newly-found freedom of movement, Novikoff also refused to further fall for soft stuff—the change of pace and such.

Restored Wrigley's Interest
In addition to giving the Cubs badly needed violence, Novikoff restored what little interest Wrigley had in baseball.

They now telephone Wrigley when Larruping Louie manufactures a home run in a game the owner is unable to attend. They long-distanced the gum tycoon in Washington not long ago when his hero slapped another.

The National League was criticized somewhat for not naming Novikoff and his teammate, Bill Nicholson, for the All-Star game. Novikoff and Nicholson are two of the mighty few in the senior circuit who smite the ball for magnificent distances.

Novikoff is slow and not a good outfielder. When he makes what appears to be an unusual catch now and then, it is due as much to awkwardness as skill. He plays hitters poorly and is an uncertain catch. His arm is only fair.

But the mob loves him. As long as Lou Novikoff continues to press the fat of the bat against the ball, he will look like a Tris Speaker to the paying guests.

And, as Jim Gallagher made plain, the customer is always right.

SHUT OUT HEAVY FAVORITE TO WIN ARLINGTON TODAY

Alsab Will Not Run in Classic; Eleven Will Start

Chicago, July 25.—(AP)—Shut Out, winner of the Kentucky Derby, races today for a turf prize that Johnstown, Bimelech and Whirlaway failed to win—the usually unpredictable Arlington Classic, highest three-year old stake of the season.

The race, called the Graveyard of Champions because of the defeat of several odds-on favorites, drew a field of 11. Missing was Alsab, 1941 juvenile champion, and winner of the Preakness. The surprise nominee was Bolus, entry of Mrs. Emil Denmark of Chicago.

The handsome Shut Out, owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney of New York, probably will go to the post an odds-on favorite because of his proven ability to run the mile and a quarter route. He has triumphed in the Belmont stakes, the Blue Grass stakes, and finally in the Yankee handicap to take the lead for the three-year old championship of the year. He needs only to win today to clinch that title.

Points for American Derby
Alsab was not in condition for the race, trainer Sarge Swenke decided. The colt, which had been Shut Out's chief contender, will be pointed for the $25,000 added American Derby at Washington park next month.

The classic that has been the jinx of champions may see Shut Out join the procession down the road to defeat, but trainer John Gaver does not believe the great son of Equipoise will fail.

With Alsab out, Shut Out's chief opposition may come from With Regards and Valinda Orphan, winner of the Dwyer stakes, With Regards ran fourth in the Kentucky Derby.

The winner's share of the purse will be at least $68,950. That's what the net will be, even if only eight run. Second place will be worth $10,000, third $5,000 and fourth $2,500.

Sports Roundup

By SID FEDER

New York, July 25.—(Wide World)—Pass the posies to Al Sabath for deciding not to start Alsab in the Arlington Classic today. . . . That seventy grand is a lot of tin to pass up, but the Sab's had only a six furlong workout since coming off his sickbed, and you don't need a crystal ball to tell you he's not ready for a mile-and-a-quarter walk. . . . By keeping him in his barn, Sabath goes a long way toward wiping out some of the criticism that chased him all year about working the willing little colt too hard. . . . With him sitting this one out, it looks from here like the Valinda entry, Bless Me, and Shut Out in that order. . . . You may deposit your uncashed mutual tickets in this corner.

HIT-AND-RUN

The Giants are getting ready to pop with a new pitcher. . . . Don't look now, but King Levinsky not only passed his physical, but also his mental exam, for the army. . . . And is now ready to go into his "transom" for Uncle Sam. . . . The whole Minnesota high school basketball tournament for this winter looks pretty shaky because of transportation headaches. . . . Willard Marshall used one of Johnny Mize's 40-ounce bats against the Reds yesterday and clouted one of the healthiest homers seen in the Polo grounds this year. . . . Needless to say, big Jawn now has a partner.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Tim Cochrane, New York World Telegram: Cleveland baseball fans now have reached the perennial stage where they are ready to give the Indians back to the Indians.

DIS-A AND DAT-A

Eddie Anderson's going to slice Iowa's September grid practice to the bone. . . . Just about every one of those fighters who went into the navy and wound up at the Jacksonville air base is taking gunnery tests. . . . Which usually is the first step toward active sea duty. . . . The Camp Grant (Ill) pitcher, Charley Wry, is the same guy who once managed Williamston (N. C.) in the Coastal Plains league and Twin Falls (Idaho), after a short stop-off with the Reds back in the mid-30's.

KEEP MOVING, YOU'RE A TARGET

Sid Luckman spent most of the spring and summer helping put the model "T" into the grid machines at Maryland, Manhattan and Washington & Jefferson. . . . In his spare time he showed forward passing tricks at Columbia, Holy Cross, and West Point. . . . War bond and stamp sales at Hamilton (Ohio) trotting track are under the direction of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. . . . No, children, she's no relation; we just wanted to see if you're on your toes.

Phillie Scout Finds Gabby

By NEA Service
Philadelphia.—When Coach Bill Killefer returned from a scouting trip through the American Association, Hans Lobert of the Phils asked him if he saw any capable catchers. "Yeah, one good one, and he's better than a lot of those now in the majors," replied Scout Killefer. "Who is he?" asked Manager Lobert, eagerly. "Gabby Hartnett, catching for Indianapolis," answered Old Catcher Killefer, the cutup.

GOLF AT POLO

About ten golfers have notified Ken Detweiler they will represent the Dixon Country club in a return inter-club match at the Edge-Wood Country club of Polo tomorrow. Ken has announced he would like to have at least five more make the trip, so anyone interested should sign up at the club now or get in touch with Ken personally. Play will start at about 1:30 o'clock.

Illinois Breweries 12,167,531 Gallons of Beer Last Month

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—The treasury department's alcohol tax unit reports that 42 breweries operated in Illinois last month and produced 392,501 31-gallon barrels of beer. Beer stocks in the state at the end of June were 555,252 barrels after 236,261 barrels had been removed by pipeline for bottling and 151,177 had been removed in barrels and kegs.

Don't Go Dashing Off to Washington Unless Necessary

If Trip Must Be Made, Know Where To Go in Capital

Washington—(Wide World)—A Texan hung around Washington for weeks (so the story goes) without getting action on his priorities application.

At last, he found out where the papers were. They needed only the signature of the man in charge. But they never got to the man.

So the Texan went down to the government office one morning, walked in with the employees (accustomed to finding strange faces in their midst), took off his coat, sat down at a desk and shuffled papers for a while. After an hour or so, he got up, rummaged through the file cases until he found his application. He carried the precious papers into the boss' office, and said: "Sign here."

The boss signed (so the story goes) and the Texan happily caught the next train for home.

Going to town: A lot of businessmen have the feeling that the only way to get action on war business is to go to Washington.

The men with the fat brief cases on the trains leaving Union station for Chicago, New York, St. Louis and Atlanta prove that it can be done.

But there's no magic in a trip to Washington. There are more business deals put over these days in regional offices out in the country than there are in Washington.

And a man who doesn't know the town—and the fine-spun workings of government—is likely to find himself drinking a lot of expensive liquor to steady his nerves.

Eating and sleeping being the complicated affairs they are in Washington today, a man owes it to himself to stay away from the town if he can.

Big town: But there still remain business problems that call for a Washington hashing. Suppose local government men can't crack your nut, and you decide to brave the overcrowded capital. How can you find your way around?

In the first place, the more dope you have on whom you want to see and for whom he works and just exactly where he works, the faster you can operate.

You still may find, when you get here, that the man just left for the army, that his branch was reorganized out of existence, and that, anyway, it has moved to some unknown Shangri-La in this never-never land.

There are people who can give you a helping hand. Among them are:

U. S. Information Center: Through the drab, gray temporary building plumped down in the middle of Pennsylvania avenue between the Willard hotel and the Commerce department pass nearly 2,000 bewildered visitors a day. They're all in search of information.

Your senator or congressman: Your representative is no miracle man; but his secretary knows the town and the tricks of the trade. To help business friends of congressmen, the War Production Board has installed stocky, graying 33-year-old William J. Hays in a walled-off piece of corridor in the house office building.

U. S. Chamber of Commerce: In its headquarters across a green park from the White House, the U. S. Chamber offers individual help to businessmen, too.

S. L. Cover, pastor

Sunday school at 9:30 a. m. and worship and sermon at 10:30 a. m. The subject of the morning is "Science and the Bible on Health."

The Rev. and Mrs. S. L. Cover have returned from a week's vacation, visiting friends near Canton, Illinois. They will want to meet all their friends at the service both in the morning and evening services. The Sunday evening service will begin at 7:30. In the evening Rev. Cover will speak on the subject "David's Concept of God" or "Trying to Understand God."

Wednesday is the meeting of the Ladies' Aid at the church all day for work and program at 2:30.

The class in dramatics meets on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock under the direction of Mr. Parks. There will be an all church social on Tuesday evening, July 28 at the parsonage lawn. The program will be in charge of the social committee of the church.

Presbyterian Church

Rev. H. Carl Montanus, pastor Sunday school, 9:00 a. m. Louis Meyer, superintendent. The Sunday school will continue its sessions through the month of August while the church services are recessed.

Morning worship, 9:50. This will be the last service of the summer season. The pastor will be on vacation until the first Sunday in September. The service Sunday will be of a special nature. The speaker will be the Rev. Warren M. Cleveland, general missionary of the American Sunday School Union, who will speak on the work being done by that organization. An offering will be received for his cause. At this service the choir will sing an anthem, the pastor will play a horn solo, and the "M. & M. Trio", composed of Misses Audra and Jeannette Miller and Lee Montanus, will sing. In the evening the Rev. Cleveland will show pictures of his work at 7:30 in the Ashton church.

W. C. T. U.

The W. C. T. U. will hold their annual picnic on Friday, July 31, at the home of Mrs. S. L. Cover. The business meeting and program will be at 2:30 o'clock, and will be followed by a scramble luncheon. Each member is privileged to bring a guest, and a good attendance is hoped for.

The program topic for the day is "Christian Citizenship"; the leader, Mrs. Elizabeth Blocher. A "patriotic roll call" is to be a part of the program, and each one attending is invited to contribute a thought along this line—original or gleaned from the words of others; modern or historical.

The day is set, the plans are made, and now we are looking forward to a pleasant afternoon together, on the very last day of July.

Tincan Salvage Is Extended to Larger Cities of Country

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—The tincan salvage program for householders, previously restricted to 36 metropolitan areas, has been enlarged to take in several additional cities, including six in Illinois.

Lessing J. Rosenwald, chief of the War Production Board conservation division, said the increase was ordered to meet an expansion from 250,000 to 400,000 tons in detinning plant capacity in the next year.

Rosenwald said the naming of the additional cities and metropolitan areas does not prevent communities outside the group from collecting and preparing tincans, providing the cans could be economically shipped to plants for salvaging the tin or stored for future detinning.

The Illinois cities designated were Rockford, Peoria, Decatur, Springfield, Rock Island and Moline.

Evangelical Lutheran Church

Martin G. Kabele, pastor

This Sunday, July 26 is our annual mid-summer rally day. Every member is asked to bring a visitor. On this Sunday the Christians of the community make public witness to the fact that their religion is a constant part of their life regardless of the season of the year. The "Rally Call" goes out to you, O Ye Lutheran Christians, as a great church family let us worship the Lord of Lords. Visitors are welcome. The message will be brought by our pastor, Rev. Martin Kabele. A men's quartet will bring us special music. The church service will begin at 11 a. m. As a special feature of the services there will be a roll call of the different church organizations. May every group be present 100 per cent.

Church school at 10 a. m. Come both for church school and for the worship services. Together they make the ideal combination. There are classes for all age groups, including six fine adult classes. The church's ministry is a ministry unto life. Is it's ministry reaching you? Come this Sunday.
